Many have tried, though no one has ever succeeded. Except in design. Here, architects, designers and all-round creatives have traced the outline of the “luna” (“moon”), bringing it into the home as a human-scale object. Waning, waxing, crescent or full, the moon takes to domestic landscapes with a pinch of poetics. Our Design Favorites of the Week, then, gives tribute to the celestial body relieving the sun as it falls over the horizon. With this, design takes shape of L for “Luna”.

Moon, by name and nature. The Moon pendant lamp by Davide Groppi is poetic, romantic and ethereal. In its perfectly spherical shape, it holds the shape of a full moon showing just one face. To be observed with your head tilted back, when turned on the silhouette of the sphere is enriched with numerous shades belonging to the world of space and the unknown. The project by the Made in Italy brand "was born from a dream," as the official description reads, to bring the moon inside the house. The handmade surface made from Japanese paper turns each model into a unique piece of furniture.
