

Livingetc

OCTOBER 2016

At home with DESIGN

EXCLUSIVE!

ANGELA MISSONI'S MILAN RETREAT PLUS: DANIELLE BUX'S LONDON PAD

AUTUMN'S NEW FABRICS AND WALLPAPERS

KITCHENS OF THE FUTURE
Discover the latest trends and looks

SPOTLIGHT ON LIGHTING
BEDROOMS, BATHROOMS AND BEYOND...

PURE STYLE

THE LIGHTING REPORT

LIGHTS ON, VOLUME UP

Some of the most innovative brands are integrating Bluetooth and wireless technology into bulbs to create lights that double as speakers - sounds rather like a reductionist's dream. Livingetc particularly loves Davide Groppi's table light, which operates via a rechargeable battery for ultimate flexibility. The Sony bulb is also worth a mention, as it doesn't stop at music - with 32 brightness levels and 192 colours, you can truly create a mood that works for you.

PoPuP light, £560, Davide Groppi at Twentytwentyone; and LSPX-102E26 LED Bulb Speaker, approx £180, Sony

FROM THIS PIC: Eclipse sconce, Mud Australia; Satellite wall light, £695, The Sofa Chair Company

TOTAL ECLIPSE

When it comes to wall lights, celestial magic is the inspiration behind the coolest new designs. The allure of this style isn't limited to serious design cred, either. The circular fittings throw a gentle glow on to the wall, which is ideal for ambiently lighting a space.

Belle So ceramic pendants, from £655 each, Contardi at Staffan Tollgård

Book lamp, £195, Lumio at The Conran Shop

AND FINALLY...

What better way to round off things than with a little design porn. These three products are dramatically different, but all just so damn beautiful. Contardi's Belle So pendants tap into the current obsession with shaped ceramic lighting; the Book lamp from Conran is our ultimate design classic; while Next Home's floor lamp riffs on the theme for all things theatrical. One thing's for sure, the future's light...

Era floor lamp, £200, Next Home